About Howden Climate Risk & Resilience (CRR)

The CRR team combines climate expertise with Howden's (re)insurance and financial markets capabilities to help enable our clients' transition to a resilient, net-zero future.

We do this through:

01 Climate & Nature advisory

02 Climate risk intelligence & data analytics

03 Risk transfer

Areas of expertise:

Physical risks

Decarbonisation

Carbon markets

Nature & biodiversity

Energy transition

Resilience & adaptation

Transition risks & opportunities

Regulation & legal liability risks

Our approach is designed with action in mind

We don't just hand you another report. We partner with you to understand and manage what really matters – and find insurance solutions for what currently cannot be managed.

Start from your unique situation & challenges

Cut through the noise of data and models to deliver clear insights

Translate insights into pragmatic actions to de-risk and build resilience

Maintain and boost your insurability for residual risks

A leading voice in the climate debate

Climate risk is no longer a future consideration. It is shaping how businesses invest, operate, insure and grow.

Our role is to help clients act with confidence: cutting through complexity, unlocking investment, de-risking transition and resilience challenges, and supporting the decisions that protect businesses, livelihoods and nature.

Our climate & nature thought-leadership
